Invitation

Conference partners The Rural Clinical School of Western Australia and Rural Health West invite you to be part of the Building the Future of Rural Health conference. This year, the conference will be held in Busselton.

Titled iDocs: connecting rural health communities, this premier annual event is a must for anyone with an interest in rural health and Telehealth. It will provide essential opportunities for general practitioners, researchers, health professionals and medical students to share ideas, form collaborations and network with speakers and other delegates. Papers presented will include research on clinical and population health in rural and remote areas; workforce and training; and policy and programs.

The conference will be held at the Bayview Geographe Resort from 20-22 September 2012. Engaging social events have been included in the program to allow delegates the opportunity to network, collaborate, share and catch up.

We look forward to welcoming you to Busselton this September!

Who should attend?

General practitioners, specialists, career medical officers, GP registrars, hospital medical staff, allied health professionals, researchers, medical students, nurse practitioners, nurses, practice nurses, nursing students, Aboriginal health workers, administrators and policy makers involved in rural and regional health care.

Application has been made for RACGP and ACRRM professional development (QA & CPD) points for the clinical stream of this conference program. CPD point allocation is not guaranteed and is subject to review by the applicable college.
Keynote speakers

Dr Michael Jong
Vice-president Medical Affairs
Labrador-Grenfell Health
Memorial University

Dr Michael Jong is a rural physician from Labrador in northern and remote Canada. He started work in the north as a young physician 30 years ago. Presently, he is the Vice-president of Medical Affairs for Labrador-Grenfell Health and Professor of Family Medicine with Memorial University, Newfoundland.

Dr Jong’s interests are in rural and Aboriginal health, Telehealth, health education and research. He developed the Northern Family Medicine (Norfam) program to train medical students and residents for rural and remote practice. Dr Jong served as the President of the Society of Rural Physicians of Canada from 2006-2008.

Dr Jong and his wife Cathy have two children aged 24 and 19 years. He is a keen fisherman and loves the wilderness.

Professor Gavin Andrews
